Greetings Colleagues,

I am writing today to invite each of you to participate in this year's First Year Faculty Ignatian Workshop organized by The Jesuit Center. The seminar meets most months from September to April and is intended to help new faculty, especially those who are not yet so conversant with the University of Scranton's Catholic and Jesuit heritage, to learn about the University's distinctive "way of proceeding" and to discern how the resources and perspectives of Ignatian Pedagogy might inform our teaching and all our work together on campus. Whatever your level of familiarity or comfort with these traditions, and particularly if terms like "Ignatian" are new to you, you are encouraged to participate in this year's FYFW. You can find more information here. The current plan is also for me to speak to you all at Faculty Orientation, Pt. II on September 5th, when I will be happy to answer questions.

As a fellow newly arrived member of the University community, I look forward to accompanying you through this experience, along with seasoned veteran and newly-appointed Associate Provost Dave Dzurec. Participation is voluntary, though warmly encouraged, and so far as I have heard past participants have had good experiences. If it aids you in your discernment, I can also let you know that seminar members receive a $1,000 stipend for completing the program, and lunch is provided at each meeting. Fall Semester meetings are scheduled for September 19th, October 17th, and November 21st. Spring meetings are (somewhat more tentatively) slated for February 20th, March 27th, and April 17th.

Please reply to me directly by Monday, September 15th if you are interested in joining this year's cohort. If you want to discuss things further, I am more than happy to set up a meeting, or you can swing by The Jesuit Center (STT 211).

Cordially,
Tim
